Overview

Deborah Taddeucci is an associate with MG+M and is a member of the Complex Litigation Practice Group. Deborah's practice focuses primarily on construction litigation, products liability and premises liability. She is an experienced attorney with over 20 years in the legal industry and has represented developers, architects and general contractors in complex construction litigation matters. Prior to joining MG+M, Deborah's practice included all aspects of litigation in construction defect, construction accidents, products liability and premises liability. She also has experience in toxic tort litigation.

Deborah's professional memberships include the Association of Southern California Defense Counsel (ASCDC) and DRI, the voice of the Defense Bar. While in law school Deborah clerked for the Los Angeles Department of Justice and for the Legal Aid Society of Orange County.

Deborah was born and raised in Northern California but has resided in Southern California for the past several years. She enjoys the beach, exercising and reading during her spare time.
