Overview

Chris Postizzi is MG+M's Chief Marketing and Business Development Officer. He is responsible for the strategic development and implementation of the firm's marketing and BD initiatives, including internal and external communications, RFP and pitch support, digital strategies and website management, advertising, social media and graphic design. Chris was a featured guest on an episode of Passle's CMO Series podcast, where he discussed how he came to his role at MG+M and built up the firm's marketing and business development function.

Prior to joining MG+M, Chris served as the Director of Marketing and Communications at the international law firm WilmerHale, and as the Manager of Marketing Services and Communications at Scripps Health, a nonprofit healthcare system with 13,000 employees and more than 20 hospital and clinical locations. Chris has a passion for team building, implementing new marketing technologies, and collaborating with partners to increase revenue and enhance their external brands.

Chris earned his undergraduate degree from the University of Vermont and his MBA from National University. He was born and raised in the Boston area, where he lives with his family.
