Overview

Selena focuses her practice on toxic tort and complex commercial litigation, guiding clients through all stages of litigation, including depositions, motion practice and trial preparation.

Before joining MG+M, Selena worked as an in-house law clerk at a Fortune 100 finance company, gaining valuable experience in large-scale national arbitrations, internal regulatory compliance and investigation, and cybersecurity matters. She also worked as a project assistant at an international full-service law firm, where she contributed to secured lending transactions in the Private Credit Department.

In law school, Selena was an editor of articles, notes, and comments for Volume 73 of the DePaul Law Review, and a staffer for Volume 72. She was also the academic chair for the First Generation Law Student Organization.

Outside of her professional pursuits, Selena enjoys exploring new restaurants and cuisine, as well as traveling around the world.
