Overview

Colin Bé is known for his dedicated advocacy on behalf of clients, balancing aggressive representation with cost-effective, business-minded approaches. Whether pursuing resolution or preparing for trial, he focuses on achieving the best possible outcomes for his clients. With extensive experience in defending complex cases, he focuses on areas such as asbestos litigation, talc litigation, toxic tort (including actions involving the Federal Employers' Liability Act (FELA)), product liability, premises liability and general liability defense.

While managing hundreds of cases, Colin stays organized and concentrates on big-picture issues. At the same time, he goes beyond the basics for each individual case, curating client- and industry-specific defenses, including critical defenses relating to the state-of-the-art and causation.

Colin also has achieved successful outcomes at all stages of litigation, including before the suit has been filed, during discovery and during trial preparation.

With broad experience handling cases from inception through resolution in both federal and state courts of New York and New Jersey, Colin has also contributed to the management and handling of matters in many other jurisdictions.
