Overview

Christina Coley defends clients in toxic tort and silica litigation. She represents corporate defendants through all stages of litigation, including depositions, motion practice, and trial preparation.

Prior to joining MG+M, Christina worked with defense teams on matters involving silica and environmental toxic tort litigation, pharmaceutical patent infringement, compliance issues, Department of Defense investigations, and intellectual property law.

During law school, Christina was a published member of the Whittier Law Review and served on the Moot Court Honors Board as the Intellectual Property Justice.

Christina is active in her community and has volunteered with the Junior League in California and Idaho, the Career Beginnings Mentoring Program in Santa Ana, the Boise Philharmonic, and as a Court Appointed Special Advocate (CASA) in Austin, Texas.
