Overview

Christine Drew concentrates her practice on asbestos litigation, premises liability, products liability, and toxic tort matters. She represents corporate defendants at every stage of litigation, including depositions, motion practice, and trial preparation.

Chris earned her JD through the part-time evening program at the University of Illinois Chicago School of Law while working as a senior paralegal at MG+M. During law school, she served on the Student Bar Association and the Moot Court Executive Board. She also holds a master's degree in public service management from DePaul University and a bachelor's degree from the University of Kansas.

Chris contributes to the Chicago Bar Association's @theBar, writing on professional development, legal updates, and public policy.
